Changing Roles, The Transition to Adulthood, & Engagement Guide

These Parent/Caregiver forms/checklists are designed to assist parents and caregivers during the transition process and to provide a guide for ways you can best support your youth, young adult, or family during transition from one age group to another, including the transition from youth/young adult services to adult services.

Together Tasks & Transition Timeline

The Together Tasks forms are designed to assist parents/caregivers with supporting your youth or young adult in conjunction with The Transition Timeline.

Both forms are guides or suggestions on how to best interact during each transition stage. The transition timelines are forms used by the youth or young adult; however, a copy of the transition timeline is available in this packet for parents/caregivers.

Changing Roles

The role the parent/caregiver plays in the transition process for the youth is vital to promote healthy development. This chart demonstrates the Shared Management Approach and is a guide for how a parent or caregiver shifts role and function in the youth's life to allow for the youth to gain independence. Every family unit will move through this process at their own pace, which is why it is so important to work closely with your child's providers to discuss when and how your role may change within their care plan(s).

Parent/Caregiver

The Transition to Adulthood

As parents or caregivers, you have already seen the youth experience a variety of other transitions such as starting at a new school or welcoming a sibling into the family, although these transitions are often more “concrete” and easier to describe and prepare for whereas the transition to adulthood is lengthy, unclear, and can cause changes for the entire family unit.

Therefore, it is crucial to begin planning and preparation as soon as possible!

The Georgia System of Care program advises that transitions to adulthood should begin as early as age 12 and is recommended to continue past the age of 18, until about age 26.

While every youth’s transition journey to adulthood looks different, here are some ways you as a caregiver can help prepare your youth for independence – starting at any age.

Parent/Caregiver Preparation Tasks:

- Work on a set of questions that the child can ask their service providers about their health (mental and physical).
- Allow the youth to have freedom within their care appointments so that they can effectively utilize service providers.
- Encourage youth to understand and use the transition level process found in this toolkit.
- Develop a medical summary and emergency care plan with the youth so they are aware and educated on their current and past health.
- Educate yourself, other caregivers, and the youth on privacy policies regarding their health as they age, (know this for all service providers).
- Communicate with your SOC Provider – or other services providers – to ensure the youth is meeting appropriate transition milestones.
- Engage in self-care discussions with the youth and with other caregivers – the transition journey is hard; learn the best ways to cope and relax.
- Allow the youth to be active in the decision-making process regarding their care.
- Remove barriers that may prevent or inhibit the child from being able to meet independently with a service provider.

For more information, and direct prompts and checklists regarding these steps, refer to the additional sections of this Toolkit and talk with your System of Care Provider.

Engagement Guide

When & How to Intervene

You know your youth best, which can prompt an instinct to be involved in their care. As they prepare for adulthood, it is important to create space for them to have freedom with their providers so they can feel comfortable in the future. Here are some ways we recommend parental or caregiver intervention when needed:

1. “Tune Up”: The Tune Up is a brief, 5 – 10-minute conversation between the parent/caregiver and the SOC Provider (or other service provider). This conversation can occur once a month, every third or fourth visit, or as decided upon between parent/caregiver and provider. The goal of this conversation is to stay informed on how the youth is doing in their sessions, be aware of current topics, goals set, and receive information on how to best support the youth during their care.
2. “Service Appointment”: This conversation is more detailed and less frequent. A Service Appointment conversation is needed when a parent or caregiver is noticing severe negative changes in the youth, if there are concerns regarding the care plan, and/or if the youth is exiting a transitional level and is preparing to enter a new stage. This conversation may also include the youth so that all members of the care team are involved and up to date on any changes or concerns.

Again, knowing when to intervene is an important skill and challenge. Intervening too soon can discourage a child from feeling independent and can hinder trust within the care team but remaining silent regarding concerns can conceal major issues in the care plan that need to be addressed.

Here are some signs to look for when deciding how/when to intervene in your child’s care:

- Youth shows severe negative changes at home or in-school.
- Youth is disinterested or unwilling to partake in services.
- Youth does not feel comfortable with their care plan or current services.
- When there has been, or may be, a drastic change to the family unit (death, divorce, moving, financial issue, etc.).
- When you (parent/caregiver) are unclear of your role within the care team.

Talk with your SOC Provider about communication expectations from each other and create a plan on how to best work together. Additionally, refer to the documents in the Transition Timelines for detailed information.

Together Tasks: Permit Holders

16-17

Parent/Caregiver:

1. Have healthy conversations on sexual wellness, gender identity, and safe sex resources (how to access birth control, condoms, etc.).
 - a. Assist them in setting up care with an OBGYN if needed
2. Take youth to work with you (or with a family member) for a day/half day so they can begin to experience what the workforce is like
3. Review social media safety plan (personal privacy, laws around online behavior sexting, social media etiquette & employers)
4. _____
5. _____

Together:

1. “Don’t Break the Bank” Challenge: provide youth with a set amount of money (real or imaginary) and a list of tasks such as: “get groceries for 3 dinners, get gas, and make one credit card payment”, and help them evaluate how to budget the money appropriately. Try this multiple times per year.
2. Create a vision board with the youth to assess their goals for the future/early adulthood.
3. Have regular family nights where you do a shared activity (watch youth’s favorite movie, bike ride, game night, etc.).
4. _____

NOTES:

Transition Timeline: Permit Holders

Age 16-17

- Make doctor's appointments, see the doctor alone, ask the doctor any questions you have, and refill medications; medication management (if applicable).
- Ask the doctor to talk with you about your privacy rights when you turn 18.
- Work with your doctor to make a medical summary. Keep a copy for yourself.
- Before you turn 18 and become a legal adult, figure out if you will need help making health care decisions. If so, request local resources.
- Discuss with parent/caregiver about the age you want to transfer to a new doctor for adult care.
- Inquiry about technology resources (apps, sites for scheduling, etc.).

Parent/Caregiver

- Encourage your teen to make doctor's appointments, see the doctor alone, ask the doctor questions they may have, and refill medications.
- Ask the doctor to talk with your teen about their privacy rights when they turn 18.
- Work with your teen and the doctor to make and share a medical summary.
- Before your teen turns 18 and becomes a legal adult, figure out if they will need help making health care decisions. If so, ask your Family Voices chapter for local resources.
- Talk with your teen about the age they want to transfer to a new doctor for adult care.

Together

- Discuss health diagnosis, medications, appointment/visit etiquette, emergencies.
- Communicate; address any concerns, questions, needs.
- Practice completing paperwork, discuss insurance, update service contact list.
- Discuss rights (at this age stage), boundaries, self-advocacy.
- "Don't Break the Bank" Challenge: provide youth with a set amount of money (real or imaginary) and a list of tasks such as: "get groceries for 3 dinners, get gas, and make one credit card payment", and help them evaluate how to budget the money appropriately. Try this multiple times per year.
- Create a vision board with the youth to assess their goals for the future/early adulthood.
- Have regular family nights where you do a shared activity (watch youth's favorite movie, bike ride, game night, etc.).
