JAIL DIVERSION TRAUMA RECOVERY (JDTR) SEEKING SAFETY

The goals of Georgia's Jail Diversion and Trauma Recovery Project are to increase the identification and treatment of persons with post-traumatic stress disorder (PTSD) who have involvement with the criminal justice system, to implement a statewide expansion of trauma-integrated jail diversion programs, and to ensure the availability of trauma-informed care to Georgia residents. The Seeking Safety initiative aims to improve the delivery and coordination of criminal justice, mental health and substance abuse services.

The one day training will include: 1) background on trauma and substance abuse, including incidence rates, clinical presentations and clinical challenges; and, 2) an overview of Seeking Safety, including stages of treatment, review of evidence base, an adaptation to settings, demonstration of the model, and frequently asked questions. Assessment tools and community resources will also be reviewed.

Key principles of Seeking Safety include: safety as the overarching goal; integrated treatment in which PTSD and substance abuse are addressed at the same time; a focus on ideals to counteract the loss of ideals; four content areas (cognitive, behavioral, interpersonal, case management); and, attention to processes that help clinicians work on counter-transference, self-care, and other issues.

Presenter: Kevin Reeder, Ph.D.

CEUs: 5 CEU contact hours have been applied for through the School of Social Work at UGA. Full attendance is required to receive CEUs.
