FY13 Health Risk Screening Tool (HRST) Training: One Day Clinical Seminar

The goal of this course is to provide the support team with guidance in identifying a person's health risks that may need further assessment and evaluation as well as determining the need for professional services. Staff training is being provided to address health risks and to provide a foundation for health care management and should not be taken by those that have attended the two day Clinical Seminars within the last three years.

This training is now a one day course with a prerequisite to complete and pass the online raters training in order to qualify to attend the One Day Clinical Seminar. Please review the information on page 2 of this announcement for the online rater instructions and additional registration information. The online raters training must be completed by the registration deadline of the corresponding session.

The intended audience for this training is support coordinators, planning list administrators, nurses and case managers who use the information from the HRST and who must follow up on recommendations from the HRST. Please know that priority will be given to nurses. The presenter for this training will be Erin Mathews, BS, DC, a chiropractic physician who has fourteen years experience with the Health Risk Screening Tool. Training will begin at 9:00am and end at 4:30pm; sign-in begins at 8:30 am.

Upon completion of the course, the participant will:

- Explain the rationale for identifying health risks and the function of assigning a degree of health risk
- Understand the difference between risk screening and health assessment
- State the most important outcomes of identifying health risk
- Have the opportunity to see a live demonstration of the HRST, including the completion of a case example with recommendations about how to address the considerations generated by the screening process
